

1. Use the following quotation correctly in a short paragraph. Think about introducing the quote and giving the correct reference information.

Things you need to know before you do this:

- this quotation is under four typed lines in size in the original text
- the author is Jane Pace
- it appears on page 37 of a book

Quote: Language that excludes does, in fact, have a detrimental effect on a person's self-perception and sense of self-worth.

2. Use the following quotation correctly in a short paragraph. Think about introducing the quote and giving the correct reference information.

Things you need to know before you do this:

- These are lines 8, 9, and 10 from a poem
- This quotation is three typed lines in size in the original text
- The author is Carlinda D'Alimonte
- It appears on page 57 of a book

Quote:

This map is brimming with memories
of soft mud, dusty home plates, beaten down with bats and runners.

3. Use the following quotation correctly in a short paragraph. Think about introducing the quote, setting up the quote, and giving the correct reference information.

Things you need to know before you do this:

- This quotation is greater than four typed lines in size in the original text
- The author is Caitlin Shaw
- It comes from page 4 of a book.

Use ELLIPSES at least once in your paragraph. (You will be cutting some of the text of the quote.) Do not exclude the following words: thus the "truth," in Foucault's conception of the word.

Quote:

The problem lies in the fact that patriarchal discourse promotes the perception of gender as biological, and those who study race claim that Western Caucasian dialogue promotes the perception of race as something natural. This perception of race is perpetuated as a means of preserving the power of the dominant white group through its basis for racism: biological characteristics translate to moral characteristics, and thus the "truth," in Foucault's conception of the word, of a minority race is formed, allowing that race to be categorized as inferior to the dominant race.

4. Use the following statistic in a short paragraph. Thinking about introducing the statistic, setting it up, and including reference information.

Things you need to know before you do this:

- The Statistic: According to the World Health Organization approach, close to one-third (31.5%) of 5- to 17-year-olds, an estimated 1.6 million Canadians, were classified as overweight (19.8%) or obese (11.7%) in 2009 to 2011).
- The Report: Information is from Statistics Canada, and the report was written by Karen C. Roberts, Margot Shields, Margaret de Groh, Alfred Aziz and Jo-Anne Gilbert
- Source: Website: <http://www.statcan.gc.ca/pub/82-003-x/2012003/article/11706-eng.htm>
- Date: Last Modified 2015-07-17